Cairo, and the area around it are considered to be the heart of Egypt, and one may find almost every aspect of Egypt represented in the area, including some of the most famous Pharaonic, ancient Christian and Islamic monuments. Cairo offers an incredible selection of shopping, leisure, culture and nightlife. Shopping ranges from the famous Khan el-Khalili souk, (or bazaar) largely unchanged since the 14th century, to modern air-conditioned centers displaying the latest fashions. All the bounty of the East is here - particularly good buys are spices, perfumes, gold, silver, carpets, brass and copperware, leatherwork, glass, ceramics and mashrabiya. Try some of the famous street markets, like Wekala al-Balaq, for fabrics, including Egyptian cotton, the Tentmakers Bazaar for appliqué-work, Mohammed Ali Street for musical instruments and, although you probably won't want to buy, the Camel Market makes a fascinating trip.

Desiring more creative control, Cortés formed the Joaquín Cortés Flamenco Ballet company and launched his first international tour 'Cibayí' in 1992. The formation of Cortés' (owns-owner – own) company allowed him (diverge -diverging- diverges) from purist ballet and create(their-his-her) own fusion of flamenco, ballet and modern dance. In 1995, in addition to being featured in two international films- 'La flor de mi secreto' (The Flower of My Secret) and Carlos Saura's 'Flamenco', Joaquín Cortés embarked(on-for-about) what is often considered his most successful venture, 'Pasión Gitana' Gypsy Passion. 'Pasión Gitana' marked the beginning of Cortés' recognition for not only his prowess as (an-the-a) dancer, but also as a choreographer and artistic director. In 1999 Cortés (was-is-has been) the subject of a documentary film and he launched a (successful- succeed- success) tour of 'Soul' across North and South America. In the 1990s Joaquín Cortés gained notoriety for his close relationships with high profile celebrities such (in-on-as) Naomi Campbell, Giorgio Armani and Mira Sorvino.
